

Hi there,

My name is Hayley, from our family-run creative hub, Almondtree Publishing in Auckland. I'm sharing a message and picture for your school communications.

I'm a teacher and a mum and we have recently launched Almondtree Publishing and our first poster- Emotions Poster No.1 by our son, Joshua (age 8). We are passionate about children's wellbeing and supporting young people in their ability to share how they feel.

We are gifting ten per cent of every poster to Gumboot Friday to help provide free counselling sessions for our tamariki and young adults. The I am Hope Foundation and Gumboot Friday have recently shared on their socials (Instagram and Facebook) so we'd like to get the word out to families across the region.

The poster came about when Joshua had a hauora class at school and came home inspired to draw emotions characters. His doodles were so good we decided to make a 'best copy' for home, and when a counsellor friend saw it she asked for a copy. We then decided to turn Joshy's art into a poster, to share across Aotearoa, supporting young people to share their feelings in a light-hearted way. From a kid, to kids everywhere!

The posters are A3 200gsm art prints (unframed) and can be found on our website: www.almondtreepublishing.nz

All payments and shipping are handled by us. We'd just love it if you could share with your school community and even purchase a copy for your school counsellor or new entrant classroom.

Warm regards,
Hayley & Joshua Hibbert

Hayley Hibbert | Director
Almondtree Publishing
www.almondtreepublishing.nz

'Creativity is intelligence having fun' - Albert Einstein

